I know it's possible to do this in javascript but i was wondering if it is possible to do it in css. So if i have .mainClass and .mainClass.secondclass.style is there a way for me to add the style so that it becomes .mainClass.secondclass.style without doing .mainClass.secondclass.style { background-color: red; } A: No, you can't do that. Even if you could, there would be no "hard coding" in styling. You could do .mainClass.secondclass { background-color: blue; } and .mainClass.secondclass.style would give you nothing. The easy and common way to do this is by using classes with js. .mainClass.secondclass.third-class { background-color: red; } Calling all wine and dine-in voters: come January 6, people who order or receive a meal or drink from a coffee shop, bar, restaurant or other establishment

But I haven't been that inspired to write lately and so I thought I'd share my favorite thing that I got while I was gone. My sister bought me some wooden IKEA pieces for Christmas and they are so cute. I ordered one of each--one of a fish and one of a turtle. IKEA also has great styles for kids and I'd like to go shopping again soon. I'm not really a furniture person, but I do like them and have given some to friends as gifts. They are cute and easy to store and there are so many options at IKEA. This piece in particular is just so hard to resist! 5 comments: That's a really cool piece of furniture. I love the color and the style of it. I definitely feel like a child when I lay things out on my dining room table. I know it looks so neat but I always just want to play with them.

MANILA, Philippines — The Muslim group Sarawak Ta'ang Gubat (Sarawak Cultural Heritage) yesterday urged the Malacañang administration to declare a National Heritage Site at the famed Sulu Sultanate marooned off the coast of Bohol Island. The recommendation was made in the wake of a social media campaign that placed a buoy to save the last remaining Sultanate stronghold. Sarawak Cultural Heritage urged President Benigno Aquino 3rd to declare the region a National Heritage Site to boost the Sultanate's revival efforts. "The Sultanate of Sulu is one of the original Malay kingdoms in the world. It is our country's strongest Muslim kingdom, f678ea9f9e
